

Protect your organisation this EOFY

As the End of Financial Year (EOFY) approaches, it's crucial for businesses to evaluate and update their cyber security measures.

Actionable Recommendations

Review your security policies and procedures:

This includes reviewing password policies, access control measures, and remote work protocols.

Ensure your policies are up-to-date and comply with the latest government regulations.

Conduct a comprehensive risk assessment:

A risk assessment is essential in identifying potential vulnerabilities within your company's IT infrastructure.

This process should involve evaluating your network security, application security, and endpoint security to identify any weak points.

Update and patch software and hardware:

Keep your software and hardware updated by regularly checking for updates and patches for all devices connected to your network.

Ensure your anti-virus and anti-malware software are up-to-date, and install the latest security updates for your operating system and applications.

Implementing these cyber security measures will help safeguard your organisation from potential threats.
